Hi Josh,

My name is Chris Goddard and I'm currently the data engineering and reporting director at the DCCC.

I was talking to a friend yesterday about difficulties and challenges in the progressive tech space and the lack of consistent data standards. He mentioned OSDI, which I hadn't heard of before.

Although it looks like it's not really a super active project anymore I would really love the opportunity to talk to you about your experience in creating it.

Would you have time for a 30 minute zoom call tomorrow afternoon or early next week?

Hi Chris,
Thanks for the email. Happy holidays. Yeah, the lack of consistent data formats is a huge challenge. That was what I experienced back at the Washington gay marriage campaign in 2012. That of course, is not unique. Its just what happens to every campaign, or really, every project on the planet, and everyone suffers. There needs to be a CSV Trauma suicide prevention hotline somewhere...

Anyway, why don't you send me some more specific questions in email.

Thanks.
Josh
